

Rules of Publication

RussianStudiesHu is an online peer reviewed academic periodical on Russistics, the contents of which, starting from 2021, is also published in printed form twice annually, in June and December. In accordance with the practice of Scopus, “articles will be published as soon as they are either accepted, like we at Elsevier are doing and add the final corrections while the article is already online or directly the final version. This option is beneficial for the authors as their work appears sooner online and it can draw readers and citations and it is beneficial for the journal because it helps keep a pre-set publication date.”

Online and printed versions of articles may differ occasionally due to space limitations.

Printed issues will not include every reference, image or other additional material.

General Guidelines

Manuscripts are accepted in English, Russian and Hungarian on condition that the article has not been published elsewhere.

The papers submitted should be between 15,000 and 60,000 characters (including spaces and notes). Authors are welcome to submit a reasonable amount of illustrative material for the online publication.

The RussianStudiesHu welcomes all colleagues interested in any part of the Eastern Slavic, Russian and Soviet history (including their Hungarian and Eastern European aspects), who submit a scientific paper observing the publication rules. Therefore, the russianstudies.hu seeks to provide for a publication platform for authors from different research fields (history, liberal arts, social sciences, etc.)

The RussianStudiesHu does not prefer any “genre”, method or trend in history writing, however, historiography stands at the centre of its founders’ scientific interest, research and publications.

Instruction for Authors

Information about the author. Each of the published studies includes a section dedicated to the author with the following personal information: name, position, degree, organisation, e-mail address.

Abstract in English of maximum 1800 characters (including title, notes and spaces) and 5–8 keywords should accompany all papers submitted.

Form of the text. The paper submitted should be prepared in Microsoft Word 2007 or higher version. File format – .docx. Normal character spacing (including citations and footnotes), Times New Roman, 12 (in footnotes – 10). Line spacing – 1,5 lines (in footnotes – 1,0 lines). All paragraphs need to be aligned to justified format. Please do not underline any words. Page numbers should be placed in the bottom right corner.

Please prepare the footnotes as follows: The source of literature, not the author and the date of publication is referenced. All references are made in the original language of the literature. The author(s) name should be written in small capitals instead of capital letters. Years and page numbers should be connected by en-dash (–) instead of hyphen (-). Please make sure that you include the following: place of publication, publishers, date of publication (volumes published before 1917 are an exception, because only their place and date of publication have to be indicated). Furthermore, in case the given item has a DOI number, please indicate it too.

At the end of the article please add a list, named References, in which the items are given in English transliteration and translation. (Russian words in this list should be transcribed according to ALA-LC standards, which permit the omission of character ties.

The RussianStudiesHu reserves the right to edit the submitted papers, in consultation with the authors, which does not imply that the published articles always reflect the editorial board’s professional point of view.

The editorial board neither retains nor returns the materials (papers, figures) submitted, however, if the board eventually rejects a paper, the editors always send an official written explanation to the author.
